Trends in counseling: a Delphi study.

RICHARD W. DANIEL
WILLIAM J. WEIKEL

Counselor preparation faculty used a Delphi procedure to forecast 48 possible trends in the areas of preparation, licensure, funding, professionalism, organizational bases and counseling procedures.

It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness. (Dickens, 1859)

In some respects, it is the best of times for professional counselors. Tom Sweeney dubbed the 1970s, "The decade of accountability" and stated "accountability will no doubt follow us into the 1980s. By heeding Goldman's admonition, the 1980s can be the decade of credibility" (1979, p. 188). At the time of this writing, counselor licensure is a reality in six states and laws are pending in several more. The American Personnel and Guidance Association (APGA) recently established the National Board of Certified Counselors and has initiated the examination and certification process. The American Mental peer and paraprofessional counseling increase or decrease? Will increased specialization be in vogue? In an attempt to examine possible future trends in counseling and to gauge their probability of occurrence, a Delphi study was undertaken.

METHOD

Some 334 full-time doctoral level faculty members were randomly chosen from the almost 1600 listed in Counselor Preparation 1980 (Hollis & Wantz, 1980). A Delphi technique was used in collecting data; the original mailing solicited respondents' forecast of changes in the field anticipated in the remainder of this century; this resulted in 86 responses, amounting to a 26% return rate; the relatively low response may be attributed to the fact that in the process
